Who can estimate the improvement that the Shorthorn has brought about in American live stock and agriculture? Who can fail to recognize the enterprise and high character of the men who have been and are associated with the Shorthorn? I am inspired as I think of their names by the score. Who can foresee the breadth of the achievement in the years to come? I am thankful that my lot was cast with the Shorthorn and that grand array of men who have bred them.

As I look back over the years and recall the men who have grown prosperous through the use of the Shorthorn and think of those countless numbers who are now prospering with the Shorthorn, I am more impressed than ever with the practical utility and adaptiveness of this wonderful breed.—Col. F. M. Woods.
